

INQUEST.

Yesterday forenoon Coroner H. R. FERRIS held an inquest over the bodies of a white woman and child, which were found dead in an outhouse near the plank road, a short distance beyond the corporate limits of the town.

It would seem the woman, who appears to have come from Duplin county, came to the place where she died about three months ago, in company with a man named GEORGE JOHNSTON, and obtained permission to stop in the outhouse. A few days after, JOHNSTON, with whom she had been living, although not married to him, was arrested by the military police, and is now, as we learn, in the military prison. We do not know who would arrest him.

It would appear that the woman and child died on Wednesday night, and the Coroner was sent for on Friday morning. The verdict of the jury summoned by him was that the deceased died "of want of assistance," under which head we suppose may be included a proper nourishment, as well as of medical attendance.

This is a painful case, and yet such cases will occur as long as the wives or others dependent upon soldiers continue to crowd towards Wilmington, leaving the counties and neighborhoods to which they belong, and where it is to be presumed, provision had been made to prevent their suffering. These matters belong to the counties respectively from which the men come, and all of it could not possibly be undertaken by the single county of New Hanover; still, common humanity would prompt all to do everything to prevent such suffering as seems to have borne in this case.

There was no one on the boat who ladies advised to be in years and very infirm, who could not go after assistance, and probably the nature of the case was known to few if any others. It appears to have been a case to which no cold reasoning could be applicable—no matter who the deceased was, or where she came from, was a woman suffering from want of assistance, an assistance which organized charity alone can effectively render in all such cases, and the occasional occurrence of which the sporadic efforts of private benevolence will frequently be unable to discover, still less relieve or prevent.

All our exchanges will have it that the Robert E. Lee's captured, or burned, or something of that kind. We are not prepared to say what may be, or what may not, but we know that if the R. E. Lee has been captured or burned, no such news has reached headquarters at Wilmington. The Margaret and Jessie is certainly "gone up," and so is the Ella and Annie.

The two GENS.—They are discussing, in England, the burning of the Blackly gun at Charleston. A friend of Capt. BLACKLY comes out in a communication attributing the burning to the supposed fact of the gun's having been too much elevated, whereas it was not elevated at all, or not more than two degrees, which is next to nothing. The London Army and Navy Gazette says that the heavy gun in the Blackly pattern, which recently burst at Charleston, was constructed at Richmond. This is not so. The gun that burst was an English gun; it did not burst because of having been fired at too great an elevation, neither did it burst from any defect in the gun itself.

We publish to-day a pretty long yarn from the New York Herald, in which a person who came passenger from Nassau to Wilmington some two or three months ago gives in his experience in the usual style of the Herald and its correspondents.

The person certainly did come to Wilmington, and is recognized. Why he was allowed to come here, or to leave here, we do not know. It's no harm account, mendacious as it is, but it is not so harmless; nor do we suppose his maps are more accurate.

General WINTON will no doubt be surprised to learn that he, or is said to be, "a pet of Jeff. Davis," and the families that have left here will be surprised to find themselves in Augusta, while those that remain are not conscious of having, as yet, paid $2 per pound for beef.

The other cruelties and discrepancies of this precious production will be sufficiently apparent to the reader without our taking the trouble to point them out.

Official Vote of the 3d Congressional District.

Table with 2 columns: Name and Votes. Includes names like DRYDEN, McFAR, PALSON, LEACH, WARD, JOHNSON, etc.

From the above return it appears that Dr. LEACH, altho' elected, goes in as the representative of a minority of the voters of the district, and that any one candidate opposed to his election could have secured a majority.

Dr. LEACH united, beat him by 150, and these gentlemen, both represented the same idea and the same principle—opposition to the croaking and abominations of the school to which Doctor LEACH belongs. So indeed did Mr. FARSON also, and in his vote added that of McRae and DEVEN also it will appear that Doctor LEACH is elected by 2064 votes while the district polled 2073 directly opposed to him and his personal "opponents."

This division among the truly conservative and sound candidates elected Doctor LEACH, and the concentration of the opposing vote upon one man and that a man so notoriously incompetent as Doctor LEACH show the closeness of the party organization of those destructive means to rule or ruin—who endorse the traitorous communications of "Davidson," or bow the knee before the edicts of the Raleigh Standard, which paper now exists as over a party triumph, with a circulation that would hardly be becoming at a time of profound peace, and is now, in existing circumstances, only placed in the hands of the party by the fidelity of Nano while home was burning.

We stood aloof from all partyism in the latest election in this district, and in now, in existing circumstances, only placed in the hands of the party by the fidelity of Nano while home was burning.
